Mr. Robert Amory, Jr.,
Deputy Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C.

Dear Bob:

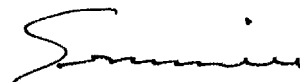

The talk you gave before the Council on Foreign Relations was one which contained a very particular message to all senior executives in the United States.

I should like very much to get you to come to dinner with about a dozen presidents or chairmen of important American enterprises for a general around the table discussion, hinged on the economic outlook of this country contrasted with that of Russia. You would supply such knowledge of the Russian industrial effort as can be divulged and I hope they will supply you with some interesting food for thought on the American. I would also get Dr. Marcus Nadler our economist to join us as he would have much to contribute to any gathering of that sort.

If you can do it, I would like to arrange a date around the middle of May, say May 13 ~~--~~ or 15*. I know that Dr. Nadler is more available in that week and I think I could get him for any one of those nights that might suit you.

I hope this will appeal to you as I think it would be an interesting evening.

Regards,

GM/B

* Nadler is definitely available
on both these dates
